Distinguished Lawyers Meet in Social Chauncey M. Depew presided at the international banquet of the American Bar Association, which was enjoyed by about 260 distinguished persons, in the Grand Union Hotel ball room at Saratoga, N. Y., last night. It was preceded by a reception in the club rooms, adjoining, when Lord Russell, Sir Francis Lockwood and Montague Crackanthorpe again met the members of the association. Following immediately was a procession, under the marshalship of Francis Rawle of Philadelphia with Lord Russell and Mr. Depew at the head. The guests marched into the hand-somely decorated banquet hall, where all were given seats, that of the presiding of-ficer being at the south end of the room ficer being at the south end of the room and immediately in front of the colossal and famous painting, Yvon's "Genius of America." After the menu had been disposed of, Lady Russell, Lady Lockwood, Mrs. Moorfield Storey and other ladles were excepted in and awarded seats of honor.

Mr. Depew, as toastmaster, in his usual folicitous style made some brief opening.

Mr. Depew, as toastmaster, in his usual felicitous style, made some brief opening temarks and offered as a toast "The Lord Chief Justice of England," which was happily responded to by Lord Russell.

The next toast was "The American Bar Association," which was replied to by Retiring President Moorfield Storey of Boston, under whose administration was held the most successful and celebrated meeting in the history of the association. the most successful and celebrated meeting in the history of the association.

Sir Francis Lockwood responded in a very happy vein to "The Wit of the English Bar." James M. Beck of Philadelphia, James C. Carter and Bourke Cockran of New York were also called upon and their utterances rounded out one of the most famous banquets ever held at Saratoga. The company did not rise till midnight.

Here is a brand-new use for the carrier pigeon. Instead of raising the birds on shore, they are bred and trained on shipboard, and if kept on land when the vessel sails will make a bee line for her the moment they are set free.

For months the men on board some of paring for the trial of this novel plan of election bulletins. There are coops with whole colonies of carriers, which the ships'
